The major project, aside from the ordinary teaching of the foreign languages, that has been undertaken by our language department was the presentation of a French play, "Le Voyage de M. Perrichon." This play was given in the second semester of the school year and was spoken entirely in the French tongue. It was given at a special assembly, and the whole school enjoyed that assembly to an unusual degree.

During the last year a Latin club has sprung into some prominence at Central. The club meets every other Wednesday, and it gives in Latin as much of the program as possible.

The English department has conducted essay contests on "Lincoln," "Greater Michigan," and "Les Miserables." It has also presented an exhibit of its work from the seventh grade through the twelfth; in this were themes, notebooks, drawings, business letters, novels, and miniature stages. This department has also directed two unusual assemblies.

Just before the Christmas vacation, a unique pageant, directed by Miss Knox, was presented at assembly. Against the background of black-robed choristers, there came the wise men, the shepherds, the poor, and the sinful, to the door of the stable. As a beautiful climax the door opened, revealing the tableau of Mary, Joseph, and the Christ Child.

On Good Friday Mrs. Anderson presented, by use of Biblical material, the central idea of the Bible story from the time of David to the dawn of Easter. The chanting in unison, the quiet talks of the two women after the resurrection, and the white clad trumpeter all left an indelible impression of beauty and power.

The history department during the last year made a most significant contribution to the school's program in the presentation, by Miss Stout, of a model assembly of the League of Nations. The auditorium was decorated with the flags of the member states, which could be identified by means of the lists of member states, posted on either side of the stage. Desks for the presiding delegates were arranged on the stage to represent the assembly room in Geneva. Students taking part were of the nationality they represented, as far as possible. The production was prepared for the History Section of the Michigan Teachers' Association, but was presented to the student body also, and demonstrated to them, as no other means could, the manifold activities and possibilities of the League of Nations.

The best way to find out what the mathematics department has accomplished during the year is to visit the mathematics exhibit which is held each year in the spring. This year the exhibit included industrial and theoretical problems, which had been worked out by the solid geometry class, and also problems, including college board examinations, which had been figured out by the students of the other mathematics classes.

The exhibit also included an interesting and unusual problem which had been made up by the Mathematics Club. This club is what might be called a ward of the mathematics department. Its members are those students who have done unusually good work in mathematics and are taking up some higher form of the science.

This department of the school spends most of its time working on school projects. The printing department has printed the majority of the printed matter that is used at school, and the mechanical drawing, woodworking, sheet metal, and sewing classes have done splendid work in providing the properties that have been used in the school pageants and plays.

An exhibit of the work of the sewing classes was held late in the spring, and the work that had been done received much praise. As to the cooking department, well, just use your nose and you will know that they have been busy.

The commercial department has had one of the best years in the history of the school, and a number of typewriting records have been made.

No one can long remain at Central without seeing what an important part the music and art departments play in our school life. This year the music department has had a number of instrumental and vocal groups which were always ready to furnish music; no matter what the occasion.

The music department has held instrumental classes, so that every student has had an opportunity to learn to play some musical instrument. Also, the glee clubs have excited favorable comment wherever they have appeared.

The art department has been busy making everything from posters to scenery for our stage. It has helped design the costumes and stage effects for most of the plays and pageants that have been given this year, and has also done all of the art work for the Helios.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

RALPH G. CONGER

Physical education plays a large part in completing the development of the average high school student. At Central High School we have a department which, making use of the two wonderful gyms we have, compares very favorably with any other physical education department in the state.

This year an especial attempt has been made to get all of the boys interested in intramural sports of one kind or another. Basketball, volleyball, foul shooting, archery, and tennis are a few of the sports in which there has been active competition among the boys this year.

The girls' gym classes were creditably represented at an inter-school meet held at Creston High School and at the "Class Night" which was held in April.

The science department this year has done a number of things that have never been attempted before. Through the co-operation of the General Electric Company they were able to secure a moving picture film showing how the molecules of matter are made up. This film was shown to the upper grades of the school at a special science assembly.

The department has also assisted in the formation of two new clubs. One of these, the Biology Club was formed among the students who are especially interested in the study of nature. A number of prominent speakers who have studied nature have spoken to this group. The other club, the C. B. C. Club, is made up of those students who are desirous of learning more about the mysteries of chemistry. Already they have visited a number of factories to see how chemicals are used in industry.

The Senior Advisory Board

URING the past year the Senior Advisory Board consisted of four members of the Senior Class: William Irwin, Cecil Rapley, Frances Robert Hefferan; and four members of the faculty: Miss Hayes, Miss Holt, Mr. Robinette, and Mr. Barber.

The Advisory Board, as its name implies, advises the class on important decisions. All proposed Senior activities must receive the approval of this board before they can be submitted to the class for rejection or approval. Also all standing committees must receive their approval before being announced. The Class Play is chosen by this board.

When matters of precedent are in question Mr. Switzer and Miss Daniels help in the deliberation of the board. The work of the Advisory Board is very important, and the efforts of its members should be appreciated by the Senior Class.

Top Row: Byron Coats, Warren Daane, John Dunnewind, Robert Hefferan.
 Second Row: Mina Philips, Jean Anderson, Frances Dexter, Emma Louise Nott, Dorothy Chapin, Margaret Friedrich, Bertha Breen.
 Third Row: Jean McMullen, Betty Osgood, Colbert Ryan, William Irwin, Cecil Rapley, Jean Mac
 Naughton.

Senior Class Officers

SENIOR Class officers have a most important part in the class. Every officer does his part in making the group function properly. He feels that it is his duty to his class to give the best that is in him in order to make the group of Senior Class officers a splendid influence and guide for the whole school. The class of '28 has as President, William Irwin; Vice-President, Cecil Rapley; Secretary, Elizabeth Osgood; Treasurer, Colbert Ryan; Advisory Board, Frances Dexter, Robert Hefferan; Poet, Bertha Breen; Orator, Warren Daane; Numeral Day Orator, Hubert Reynhout; Spade Orator, Jean Mac Naughton; Prophets, Mina Phillips, Jean Anderson, Frances Dexter; Artist, Emma Nott; March, Dorothy Chapin; Words to Class Song, Jean McMullen; Music to Class Song, Helen Reinhard; Editor of the Helios, Byron Coats; Historian, Margaret Friedrich; Cartoonist, John Dunnewind.

Top Row: Kenneth Mee, Gordon Grill, William Irwin, Paul Fifield, Colbert Ryan, Warren Daane.
 Second Row: David Brockmeyer, Miss Hayes, Gladys Timpson, Cecil Rapley, Betty Raymond, Betty Osgood.
 Third Row: Theodore Norris, Margaret Friedrich, Irene Hill, Juliet Patrick, Dorothy Chapin, Willard Gentz.

Senior Senate

N organization at Central High School, the Senior Senate, was instituted to record the attendance in the senior session room and take charge of the order in the session room and in the halls. The purpose of the senate is to stimulate in the seniors, as upper classmen, a greater feeling of responsibility for order and obedience to rules, in other words, student self-government.

There are twelve members in the Senate each semester. Six of these members are chosen by the seniors, and six are appointed by Miss Hayes in conference with other teachers. Nine of these members take charge of the session room during the nine periods of the day. One serves to take the place of absent senior senators. Two have charge of the halls. This constitutes the duties of the twelve senators.

Meetings of the Senate are held at which Miss Hayes presides. Problems of the school are discussed, and suggestions for general welfare in halls and session rooms are made.

The Senior Senate proved very successful this year. This was especially shown during the absence of Miss Hayes when Mrs. Snell was in charge of the senior session room.

Charles was among the top-notchers on the roll of honor students. A gentleman and more.

In the time of long days and star-lit nights, there happened beside an elm shadowed fountain on a hill top, a series of mysterious events.

N former days there wandered into the valley of the swiftly flowing Grand, a band of treasure hunters. One day when they were in the midst of a deep forest they saw, gathering in the sky, huge clouds through which flashed darts of lightning accompanied by the distant roar of thunder. Realizing the danger of an electrical storm they frantically sought shelter. At this time they perceived, through the thickets, the bulk of a mammoth mountain rising to untold heights in the distance. They sought the slope of the mountain side, hoping to find some sheltering cave. After great difficulty they came upon the entrance to a cave under which was a faint, almost indecipherable inscription, the letters "C. H. S." However, unfortunately, the entrance was blocked by a great stone which could not be rolled away. Already the clouds had covered the sky, and the rain was mercilessly beating down upon them. Frantically they attempted every means of gaining entrance when a group of guides, who approached from the forest, also seeking shelter, cried out, "Open Swi-Swi-Switzer." Slowly, by degrees, in response to the magic word, the stony mass began to roll away, disclosing a dark passage.

When they had crossed the threshold of the cave; before them, at the top of a flight of steps, appeared a strange headless figure of a winged woman. Overcoming their first bewilderment, rejoicing because they were high and dry, they noticed dusky walls which might once have been chalky white stretching off into the distance. Gradually they became conscious of a queer, unpleasant smell of gases, which sent them scurrying along the passageway. The strains of sweet (?) music attracted some to a large cavern; others led on by the sound of a rhythmic tattoo sought a further grotto; some looked for the source of delicious odors issuing from the lower regions; while still more, wandering, came upon alcoves exquisitely illuminated with mural decorations. Suddenly a piercing bell drove them terrified into a huddled group. They glanced questioningly at the guides, who smiled reassuringly, and led them by groups into the other various grottoes.

They discovered, to their joy, that these grottoes were filled with beautiful trees, bearing wonderful gems, crystal polygons, Browning's diamonds, and numerous dates, which dazzled the sight but bewildered the mind. When the searchers had filled their pockets until they had become weighted down, the treasure seekers began to realize which objects were important, and which were only petty jewels. As these searchers advanced by the light of the guides, their discoveries became more interesting; some were able to retain the valuable articles successfully, while others, less fortunate, allowed the jewels to slip through their fingers.

At last this particular group of treasure hunters saw their goal, the door of the cave, hidden in the remote shadows of the most wonderful of all grottoes. Above this alcove was inscribed CIV. As they entered, a new guide greeted them and promised to help them in their searches. She taught them that if they were organized, it would be easier to reach the exit, so they chose leaders from among themselves to help direct the way. About this time the new guide was taken ill and she was not able to be present in the cave for several weeks and thus all activities were retarded.

Since the members of this new organization had come from various grottoes, scattered throughout the passage, they decided to have a party in order to become better acquainted. Later on, to remove the monotony of life, the searchers had another party to which they wore clothes that they had been preserving for several years. To show their dramatic ability they presented a mystery play for the entertainment of all, even those who were not searchers in this passageway.

Their last year of searching is now over, for they have found the door, and they will soon secure the scroll inscribed with hieroglyphics which will open it. They have by no means finished their search for treasure; but now that the cave has been thoroughly examined, they must go out into the world and continue their hunt in larger fields. They have sought diligently together, and it will be difficult for them to leave their fellow searchers and guides. They must make their lives successful for the magic phrase with which they leave the cave is "Our aim is success; our hope to win."

This is the end of that which hath come down to us of the history of the Class of '28.

Senior Class Meetings

ALTHOUGH the activities of the class were rather slow in getting under way, they finally opened with a bang with "Hello Week" and the "Hello Week Party".

In December the class congregated for the first time in 104 to hear the results of the election of class officers. While the votes were being counted, the amateur talent of various seniors entertained the other class members with singing and music.

Although many short meetings were called at record period at which the senior committees were appointed, the class jeweler, Herkner, was chosen, and the committees for the Senior One-Act plays were announced, the first really formal meeting was not held until February 7. At this time the class photographer, Brubaker, was chosen.

At a business meeting, March 2, burnt orange and yellow were finally chosen for the class colors and yellow roses for the class flowers. At this same meeting the returns of the class day election were announced.

April 18 was the date of the senior mock election, by far the most exciting meeting of all the year. After much fun and uproar, the choice of candidates for each position was at last satisfactorily settled.

Early in May came Numeral Day when the class prophecy was read and the class numerals were unveiled with a fitting ceremony.

"In the Next Room," the thrilling Senior play, was exceedingly well enacted on May 26 and 27. Everyone present was enthralled and mystified until the final denouement.

June 8, Class Day, is an occasion whose memory will long linger in our hearts. Then the class song was sung, the oration delivered and the spade handed down to a representative of the next senior class.

June 22, Commencement Day, was a day of mingled joy and tears. In the morning we were graduated forever from dear old Central and in the evening after the Senior Banquet, we bid a sad goodbye to those friends among both the faculty and student body who have done so much toward making our four years at Central happy years.

Sowers

*The harvest is gathered that others have sown; in barns
it is piled up high;
The sowers have labored the season through; their resting time is nigh.
But the yellow grain must be sown again, and we — the sowers be.
Stout-armed we tread in the morning light, shaping eternity.*

*The ground is rough and the plow is old, and our hands unused to toil;
The day is fair — she would lure us off, our worthy purpose foil.
Wide brown before us lies the field, all of it must be sown.
And oh, the long, long days before the plants are fully grown!*

*The weeds must be daily driven out and the wheat rust overcome;
The days of drought that are days of fear are apt to be troublesome.
Oh, we may be tempted many a time to abandon our purposed end,
Till our hearts are filled with questionings as to whither our footsteps tend.*

*But our aim is success, our hope is to win; so with faith in God and men
We shall leave in the hand of posterity good grain to sow again.*

BERTHA BREEN.

Oh Aladdin, rub your wonder lamp,
And show what glorious fate
The future has in store for us,
The class of 'twenty-eight.

In days of old your magic charm,
From ancient books we learn,
Made young the old, made rich the poor,
Did many a clever turn.

We are the pride of Central High,
A class of students rare,
So grant to us our boon, we pray,
And lay the future bare.

Oh classmates, see, his lamp he rubs,
And in a dazzling ray,
He shows the future, plain and clear,
Of each of us today.

The light grows dim, the picture faint,
The future fades from view.
But then we beg another boon,
To show the teachers too.

And when the lamp grows bright
again,
There stands revealed the fate
Of the teachers, still in Central High
In nineteen forty-eight.

In the library Miss Ball conducts open dances
And says one may read or may play as he fancies.
The Athletic Board will admit to a game
Any dumb-bell of Central, therein to win fame.
With voice very gentle, says Miss
Martha Clay,
"Study half of a page; it's enough for
to-day."
Miss Holt's Latin ponies are the joy

Three chapters of Chemistry are all that are done.

ing each day,
But he says with a shrug, "Let the kids
have their way."
In daily assemblies the faculty shine;
Their clogging and singing are certainly fine.
Miss Maurine Jones, refusing to quiz,
Says, "I never did see what the point of it is!"
In the hall at ten, under Winged Victory,
Miss Daniels serves all with five o'clock tea.
Mr. Switzer allows parking all over the grass
And says that on twenty a student may pass.
In old Central's halls play reigns supreme;
Of doing his work, no one would dream.

The Class of Twenty-eight, as they see how school is run,
Say, "Alas! In balmy days of yore, such things were never done.
"What is the younger generation ever coming to?
"We'll join the P. T. A. at once, and see what we can do!"

Again Aladdin rubs his lamp,
The lights grow dim and die.
We stand amazed in speechless awe,
At the things we did espy.

But come to us whatever may,
We prophets three unit.
In wishing for our classmates all,
A future, kind and bright.

Helios Advisory Board

THE Helios Advisory Board consists of four faculty and five student members. These form the controlling body of the Monthly and Annual Helios. Meetings are held every other week. Before this board come all the questions and matters concerning the Helios. The Board also selects the Annual and Monthly Helios staff.

However, attendance of the Board meetings is the least part of the work of the faculty members of the Helios Advisory Board. Upon these teachers rests the responsibility for the success of the Helios. They decide all of the questions regarding finances and in other ways help to keep the editor's hair from getting too gray. The student members of the Board herewith express their appreciation of the help the faculty members have extended.

The following are the members of the Helios Advisory Board:

Literary Advisor	MISS MARTHA CLAY
Jokes Advisor	MISS MAURINE JONES
Art Advisor	MRS. LOUISE G. BOHLEN

Debating Teams

CENTRAL'S debating team has had a rather successful year, having won two and lost two of the league debates. The first debate was with Kalamazoo. The question was: "Resolved: that the direct primary system of nominating candidates for office in the United States be abolished." Central's team consisting of Warren Daane, Bill Irwin, and Leon Anders defended the affirmative. This debate was lost as was the following, which was against Muskegon, the same team defending the affirmative.

However, with the change to defending the negative our luck seemed to change too, and Warren Daane, Bill Irwin and Nydia Barken defeated South High. The last debate was with Grand Haven. This also was a victory for Central's team, this time made up of Warren Daane, Katherine Coffield, and Bill Irwin.

Other members of the squad who had their opportunities in informal debates with other schools were Rudolph Meissner, Paul Fifield, Robert Fox, and Gordon Love.

Of the members of the squad, Bill Irwin and Leon Anders are eligible to Rho Pi Alpha, the city honor forensic society. Warren Daane was elected to this society last year.

Three members of this year's squad, Katherine Coffield, Nydia Barken, and Gordon Love, do not graduate until next year, so the prospects for an experienced team next year are very good.

The Student Council

UK Student Council has just brought to a close one of the most successful years in its history. Its activities this year began with the drawing up of a new constitution, under which it now has three faculty advisors, including Mr. Switzer. Its first move after the adoption of the constitution was to raise funds for bunting and flowers to be placed around the memorial on Armistice day. Money and food were collected at Thanksgiving time, and were given to the Welfare Union.

Preparations have been made through the efforts of the Council for a new Student's Handbook, which, it is hoped, will be published early next year. In November the Council took charge of the sale of tickets for the concert given by the music department. It is now planning a circus, which is expected to be a great success.

The Council has had a membership of forty-six, this year, and it is the interest of these members together with the cooperation of the faculty advisors that has been instrumental in advancing the right type of school spirit at Central.

National Honor Society

CENTRAL'S chapter of the National Honor Society has been in existence for a little more than a year and is now flourishing nicely. The purpose of this society is to honor those students who have had the highest records throughout their high school careers in scholarship, leadership, character, and service. These four are the principles of the organization.

The society pin is a small likeness of the society emblem, which is a flaming torch on a keystone. On the base of the keystone are the four letters, S, L, C, and S, which stands for the four principles of the society.

This year there have been two assemblies, one in February and one later in the spring, at which members were taken into the society. To be eligible for membership a student must stand in the upper fourth of his class in scholarship, must have been at Central for at least a year, and must possess the other three characteristics that are the standards of the society. In the twelfth grade fifteen per cent of the class may be elected, and in the eleventh grade, not more than five per cent.

"C" Club

IN the winter of 1926 the "C" club was organized for Central boys to promote a better spirit, cleaner athletics, and a stronger bond of friendship among the athletes. The motto of the club is "Develop a Fighting spirit and a Friendly Attitude." Any boy who has won a major "C" in any sport or who has been a Senior manager or cheer leader is eligible for membership. About thirty-five boys are now members of the club.

The club has enjoyed a very successful year. Meetings have been held every first and third Wednesday of the month. They have given two parties, a house-warming at the new Field House for members and an open dance in the Gymnasium. During spring vacation they gave a house-party at Ottawa Beach. After several of the basket-ball games the club served the visiting and home teams.

The boys appreciate the loyalty and enthusiasm of their faculty advisors, "Sherm" Coryell, "Rip" Mathews, and "Walt" Hanson.

The Hi-Y Club

URING the past year the Central Hi-Y has been fairly active. The club ran the football scoreboard, and at Christmas collected food and money and thus enabled three poor families to have a good Christmas dinner. The club also sent delegates to the Older Boys' Conferences at Kalamazoo and Rockford.

The programs have varied from a debate on capital punishment to talks on vocational guidance and illustrated lectures on Alaska and Yellowstone Park. Among the speakers of the past have been Mr. Buckner, Mr. Yonkman, Mr. Sanford, Dr. White, "Rip" Mathews, and Mr. Du Mond of the Kent Scientific Museum.

All Hi-Y members realize the benefits of the club, and it is certain that the Central Hi-Y will live for many years and always "create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character."

Mathematics Club

THE MATHEMATICS Club was organized two years ago for the benefit of those students particularly interested in this subject. To be eligible for membership, one must be studying, or have studied, some branch of higher mathematics. In addition to this, one must have had an average of B in this subject.

The meetings of the Club are held on alternate Thursday nights in the club rooms; every other meeting being a supper meeting. At these supper meetings, the members of the Club work various mathematical puzzles and problems. At the other meetings, subjects of mathematical interest are discussed by various members, and this year two outside speakers, Mr. MacNaughton, and Mr. Coryell gave very interesting talks. December twenty-first a Christmas party was held at Miss Wilson's home, and March twenty-ninth all the members of the faculty teaching mathematics were invited to attend the regular supper meeting.

The person most directly responsible for the success of the Club is Miss Wilson, the faculty advisor.

Deltathenian Club

ELTATHENIANS were introduced into Central for the first time last year. The purpose of the club is to recognize those pupils who have distinguished themselves in some line of public speaking. Students are eligible to membership who have represented their school in one inter-high school debate, declamation, or oratorical contest, or who have successfully played a leading part in a long play or strong parts in two one-act plays. Stage managers, property men, electricians, and any other people necessary to a successful production are also eligible on the same basis.

The members hold one supper and program meeting and one business meeting a month and a picnic in the spring, thus building up a close comradeship. Mrs. Nistle, the faculty member, always more than cooperates with the other members of the organization.

The club has held two open meetings this year. At the first meeting, to which members of the other clubs at Central were invited, a historical motion picture was shown, and, to the other meeting, a supper meeting, the members of the March one-act plays were invited.

C-B-C Club

NEW club, the C-B-C Club, has been organized at Central this year. The club, whose full name is Central's Better Chemists, is composed of the members of the advanced chemistry classes.

The purpose of the club is to further the interests of the members in chemistry and to see to what extent chemistry enters into our daily lives, in the home as well as in the factory.

To carry out the club's purpose it is intended, during the year, to visit the numerous factories in and near Grand Rapids. Various chemical practices are put into use at these factories, and it is hoped that the club members besides seeing how widely chemicals are used in industry will also see how the chemicals which they experiment with in class are used on a large scale.

Mr. Barber, teacher of advanced chemistry, is the club's faculty member.

Biology Club

THE Central Biology club was organized in February 1928, with the purpose "to seek the truths of nature and thereby become friends and lovers of wild life." Those who have had zoology, botany, or physiology are eligible for membership.

The club meets every Tuesday evening in the club room, and, at several meetings, the members have had excellent times working out contests on birds, flowers, and animals. This year interesting talks relative to the study of biology have been given by Mr. Etter, Mr. Du Mond, Miss Stearns, Mr. Ranck, Miss Valentine, Miss Porter, and Mr. Greenman.

The members wish to extend their appreciation to Miss Angel, Miss Porter, and Miss Valentine, faculty advisors, for the help and hearty co-operation so willingly given them.

Campfire Girls

 CENTRAL High School is able to boast of seven of the seventy Camp Fire Groups in the city. Each group has a guardian who helps the girls to plan their program of activities and who keeps them in touch with the National Organization. The Guardians of the younger girls' groups are Mrs. Pepper, Mrs. McAlpine, and Mrs. Van Heest. The older girls have chosen as their guardians Mrs. R. G. Anderson, Mrs. Chesley, Mrs. Smith, and Miss Plett.

A Sectional Council Fire was held at Central February 17, for all the groups in this district. There was a fine council ring of about 100 girls, half of whom had gone far enough in Camp Fire to own a Ceremonial Gown. Several lovely strings of honors were presented to the different groups for their work along many lines.

The Little Stone House which contains the Grand Rapids Camp Fire Headquarters is one of the old landmarks of this city. It serves as an office for the executive and her assistants and provides a place for the girls to serve teas and suppers and hold meetings. The Little Stone House may mean more to girls in and around Central than to any others because they are able to drop in so often to see the three staff members who plan the interesting and constructive program for the Grand Rapids girls. Miss Marion Gavett, the head of Camp Fire in this city and her assistants, Miss Helen Lussenden and Miss Julia Merriam, are all graduates of Central High School.

Agona Athletic Association

THE Agona Athletic Association is an organization which strives to promote interest in athletics among the girls of Central. To be eligible for membership, a girl must be trying for her numeral, letter, or all city honor.

The new members of the club were required to wear red bandana scarfs with a large "A" on them as part of their initiation, and, between this and the sandwich sales which the Agona Club held, the school was kept well aware of the club's existence.

The club meets every other Thursday afternoon in Room 216, and also holds occasional spreads at the members' homes Friday nights. In addition to this, the members had a house party during Spring vacation. In all, this has been a very successful year.

According to its custom, the Association gave the small Tri-Honor Cup and the Agona Cup at the annual award assembly in June.

The advice and co-operation of Miss Maxwell, Miss Reese, and Miss Elinger, the faculty advisors, have been greatly appreciated.

Girl Reserves

ANOTHER year has not changed the custom of opening the activities of the Girl Reserves with a Faculty Tea. Several articles, also, were made as service work for the Needle Work Guild. When Christmas time came, a basket was taken to a needy family. Practically every alternate meeting the Code was discussed as part of the program and this proved to be a big success. Three girls from Central represented the Club at the Mid-Winter conference held in January. An exciting time was had at the Valentine party which was followed in a couple of weeks by a tour through Putnam's Candy Company.

This year was a little different from previous years in that instead of a Mother and Daughter Banquet, a Father and Daughter Banquet was given. The girls are now looking forward to the roller skating party and the biggest event of the year, the house party.

The Classical Club

IN the fall of 1926 the Latin J-1 class formed what was then called the Classical Club. The membership of this club, however, was confined to the class. The class dramatized the story of "Julia with the Pirates" and "Julia at School."

The next year the club assembled, this time including the students of the Latin four class. A name with the Greek letters of Sigma Chi was chosen by the members.

The Sigma Chi club meets every other Wednesday. Minutes are written and read in Latin. The plays "Exitus Helvetiorum" and "Idus Martiae" have been read and discussed. At one of the meetings Miss Jones gave an illustrated talk. A short play in Latin was also enacted. The membership is not confined to the class now, and several members have been admitted. Miss Anna Jones is the faculty advisor of the club.

Boys' Glee Club

WITH a membership of about forty boys, the Boys' Glee Club has completed a very successful year. The boys sang on a great many occasions at school assemblies, took part in the Autumn Concert and Christmas Pageant given by the Music Department, sang for the Business and Professional Women's Club, and took part in the concert given for the State Federation of Music Clubs.

In the fall both the Glee Clubs enjoyed a party given by Miss Goss in the girls' gymnasium.

Eugene Masselink, a member of the glee club, was sent as their representative to the National Music Convention in Chicago, in April.

The boys' uniforms were blue coats, white trousers, and yellow ties. Among their favorite and most popular pieces were "Lassie O' Mine" and "The Gypsy Trail".

Both the Glee Clubs wish to thank Miss Nellie Goss for her enthusiastic and loyal support and for her talented leadership.

Girls' Glee Club

VERY pleasant and successful year has been enjoyed by the Girls' Glee Club. In the fall the membership was, as usual, about forty girls, but in February due to conflicting classes, several girls had to give up Glee Club. Nevertheless those remaining entered into a great many activities.

They sang for the Business and Professional Women's Club, played a prominent part in the Autumn Concert and the Christmas Pageant sponsored by the Music Department, sang at several school assemblies, and took part in the concert given at the State Federation of Music Clubs. They also furnished a special chorus of twelve girls to sing at the Annual Parent Teachers Association Banquet.

Their uniforms consisted of dark blue coats, white skirts, white blouses, and yellow ties. Next fall there will be places for more girls, as many of the present members are graduating.

Miss Nellie Goss directed and Dorothy Chapin accompanied.

Orchestra

CENTRAL'S orchestra this year consisted of fifty members. Along with the band, they helped to make a better instrumental department for Central. Their rooms have been remodeled, furnishing better means for storing and caring for the instruments. Private classes for individual instruction were formed so that there was a greater proficiency when the members were playing together.

The orchestra played at several of the school assemblies, at the Autumn Concert of the Music Department, and sent one of its members to the National Camp and Convention. Austin Tuller was the representative. Several of its members were selected to play in the Inter-High School Orchestra.

The work of the instrumental department has been very greatly improved this year, and Central feels proud of the showing it has made.

Band

NDER the talented leadership of Mr. Arthur Williams, the instrumental department of Central has had one of the most successful years of its career. Early in the fall the long-hoped-for uniforms came, and our band was able to far out-shine any of the rival bands which they met. This was due not only to their attractive appearance, but also to their splendid playing.

The band supported the football team at all of their games and the basketball team at the home games, played for assemblies, and took part in the Autumn Concert given by the Music Department.

The band wishes to thank Mr. Williams for his enthusiastic support and the Parent-Teachers Association for the uniforms which they worked so hard to buy.

Games Won—5. Games Lost—3

PROSPECTS for a successful season looked very bright this year in that Coach Coryell would have both more experienced and heavier material to work with than in some time past. Of last year's team Hicks, Mee, Simpson, Brockmeier, Jaehnig, Jones, Gorman, Price, and Konig were back. Around these boys was constructed the team of '27 which, with the exception of the last game, we feel has a very good record.

The first game of the year was played with Ottawa Hills. The Indians, after enjoying an undefeated season in 1926 and the return this year of fifteen letter men, were all set for big things. They played well and fought hard but found class A competition quite different from class C. Despite the very hot weather and frequent substitutions, Central piled up a score of 41 to Ottawa Hills, 0.

The second game of the season was the one with Creston. The day was comfortably warm for the crowd of about three thousand people who watched, but it was intolerably hot for the players. The game was not characterized by much spectacular play; for the most part it was just straight fundamental football. This second annual football game with Creston ended 20-0 in favor of Central.

The third game in line this season was the Lansing game. As yet Lansing has but one large high school and that school is always represented by

Albert Jones

David Brockmeier

Howard Jaehnig

Irving Simpson

good teams. They are called the "Big Reds" and this year had won their preliminary games by large scores and were predicting a state championship team. However, when they played Central this thought was changed; they were doomed to defeat. The first half was scoreless, but in the third quarter Lansing weakened and was forced to resort to a safety and a few minutes later had their goal line crossed for the first time. Thus the game at Lansing ended 8-0 in favor of Central. It was a great game.

A week later our team played Catholic Central at Houseman Field before a crowd of eight thousand people. The battle waged back and forth for a long time, but in the third quarter Catholic crossed our goal line. This seemed to inspire them so that, fight as our boys did, they were unable to reduce the lead of six points. This was a hard defeat, for it not only disqualified us for the state title but placed the city title far out of reach.

The Central-South game a week later left Central in a much better position. Although up to that time South had not shown a great deal of strength that day she exhibited some fine pass work. During the first quarter the ball was worked up and down the field and was several times in scoring position, but each time South held for downs. In the second quarter, however, Bill Irwin made the only score of the game when he fell on a punt blocked by Irv Simpson back of South's goal line. It was an exciting game, for often South threatened with her offense.

Kalamazoo was Central's next opponent and she fell hard. Although Kazoo's ends were supposed to be towers of strength Central made most of her ground around them. Gorman once ran sixty-nine yards around end and thru a broken field for a touchdown. This play was followed by some good passing by Jones and Hicks and more end running and a few off-tackle plays. The game ended with Central on Kazoo's twenty yard line and leading in score 19-0.

Up to this point Central had won five out of six games and it looked as though she had a very good chance of bettering this average. With this thought in mind the team trained during the next week as few teams ever train. With this thought in mind she went to Island Park and played Union. During the first quarter Central got the ball and marched straight to the goal line in a series of line plays and a number of forward and backward passes. But Union, instead of giving up, fought the harder and in the second quarter tied the score 7-7. The score remained the same until the last two minutes of the fourth quarter when a long pass netted Union six more points and the point after touchdown another point. Although Central now fought harder than ever, the task was impossible. The score remained Central 7, Union 14. Although fans freely admitted that Central outplayed Union, the score could not be changed.

Then at last Central met Muskegon. In that traditional game the fates had decreed against her. Though throughout most of the season critics had expected Central to hold her own with the Muskies the final outcome of the game was not unexpected. Muskegon, who had been playing better football than has been seen in Michigan for a long time, was especially urged to her best effort because of the presence of "Bennie" Oosterbaane, Captain of Michigan's team this year and also twice chosen all-American end. The game started out to be a good contest, for the score at the end of the first quarter was 0-6 in favor of Muskegon. The final score of the game was 0-44 for Muskegon. In this one game alone Central was really badly beaten; however, we may take consolation in the fact that only a state-championship team was able to do this.

Although Central did not win as many games in score this year as some other years, we feel that the season has been a success, for besides winning the fair number of games in score and some others in moral victories, her team at all times played in a way that could reflect only credit on her school. At all times her play was characterized by clean, hard fight. On and off the field the players trained themselves to be men, which after all is the most important thing. Because of this we say the season was a true success and hope that football seasons in the future may be as successful.

THE NEW GYM

CENTRAL began the 1927-'28 basketball schedule with bright prospects for a favorable season, for four letter men of last year's team were available all season. Moreover, "Irv" Simpson and "Bud" Hicks were eligible to play until February, and at that time it was expected that Emmett McCauley and Paul Fifield would become eligible. The four letter men that were available all season were Captain "Ted" Norris, Harvey Smits, "Colby" Ryan, and Louis Schuhardt. Everything worked out as expected, and therefore, Central really had six available letter men all during the season. Besides these letter men Central had many capable substitutes. Bruce Cleveland, a small package from Muskegon Heights, came in handy many times as also did Parker Terryberry, Harvey Olson, Bert Koning, Varion Haskin, and Ivan Whan.

Central started the season in the right manner by defeating Greenville's

Colbert Ryan

Theodore Norris

team 27 to 23. The Greenville team was no setup as they nearly won the State Class B Championship last year and had all of these veteran players back again this year. The next morning the Herald was correct in saying that Central fans could sing "Cheerio" over their team's debut for the 1927-'28 season. This conviction was thoroughly proved when Central next defeated Battle Creek in a thrilling overtime game, 24 to 22. Harvey Smits shot the winning basket. This victory was especially sweet as Battle Creek was considered by many critics as the best team in Michigan.

In the next game Central defeated Creston High 18 to 16. Creston held the City Championship last year so this victory indicated that Central ought to have a good chance to cop it this year. The game was extremely close, however, and we were very glad when it was over with Central in the lead. Capt. "Ted" Norris scored 8 points for Central while "Irv" Simpson also played very well. The next evening Central had little difficulty in defeating Catholic Central, 25 to 14. "Colby" Ryan and "Bud" Hicks were the Central high scorers.

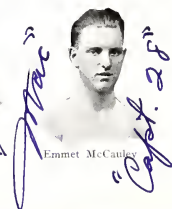

The next week Central lost its first game of the season to Ottawa Hills, 25 to 16. Central managed to lead at the half, but during the second half the Indians ran wild.

Our next game was with Union. This game was a heartbreaker. Although Union won, 18 to 25, Central played a much better game but just had a lot of tough breaks. The next night Central went to Muskegon and was defeated 35 to 20. The Central team appeared to be in a slump and missed many easy shots. However, Muskegon didn't have everything their own way. "Bud" Hicks and "Irv" Simpson, both playing their last games, were the Central stars. Harvey Smits also did some clever playing. Hurrah! our boys came back to life and walloped South 27 to 15. Everyone seemed to be doing well and it was great to see our team really playing again. The next night Catholic was again an easy victim, this time 30 to 12.

The following week Muskegon came here all set to give us the beating of our lives. We fooled 'em. It's true they won, 25 to 22, but we certainly gave them a scare. They had, for about four minutes, a little scoring bee of their own. However, in the other 28 minutes Central put it all over Muskegon. Bruce Cleveland was the Central star, scoring 9 points. He sure was "hot."

Revenge is sweet! The next week we shipped Union, 32 to 15. "Colby" Ryan was the "hot" man that night. He scored 14 points during the progress of the melee. The next evening the team lost a close game to Kalamazoo 23 to 24. The strenuous game of the night before placed the Central boys at a disadvantage.

Ottawa Hills next! Wow! Since Central had been playing extremely well lately, and had won all except two of her city games, the game with Ottawa Hills would practically decide the City Championship. The seats were all sold three days in advance of the game. Central got off to a good start, but Ottawa came back and was leading 7 to 6 at the end of the half. Captain "Ted" Norris was put out of the game during the second quarter on personal fouls, but Bruce Cleveland, who took his place, played very well. The second half found both teams battling on even terms until there was about four minutes to go. Then Ottawa took a two point lead and stalled, until, with only 15 seconds to play, "Colby" Ryan shot a basket and tied the score. Whew! The first 3 minute overtime brought no score as both teams seemed to pay considerable attention to defense. However, in the second overtime Harvey Smits put in a beautiful side-court "shot" and gave Central a two point lead, which she held during the remainder of the game. The remarkable guarding of Emmett McCauley was an outstanding feature of this game, as it has been of almost every game he played. "Mac," without a doubt, proved himself the best guard in the city when he stopped Ottawa's six-foot six-inch center, Garner. "Lou" Schuhardt, the other guard, fooled the Ottawa forwards repeatedly with his fast footwork and clever dribbling. These two guards sure are good. "Colby" Ryan, Central's center, was the high scorer of the game with 8 points.

The next evening Central played Lansing, a team that had previously beaten Muskegon. The boys were all tired out because of the hard-fought game of the night before, but played extremely well. The score was 25 to 19 in favor of Lansing. "Colby" Ryan with 8 and "Lou" Schuhardt with 6 points were Central's high scorers.

THE OLD GYM

In the last scheduled game of the season Central defeated South, 23 to 17, to cinch the City Championship. Everyone on the team played well. It was a strenuous game, and a glorious closing to the most successful basketball season Central has had for four years.

Coach Sherman Coryell deserves considerable praise for coaching the boys to a city championship. The members of the squad gave him a white gold watch in token of their esteem and appreciation. "Sherm" has taught the boys how to play a good, clean, sportsmanlike game and this, after all, is more important than winning or losing games.

Tennis

ALTHOUGH Central lost most of its team by graduation, among them being Bill Irwin, state champ, and Daane, who with Irwin went to the finals in the state doubles, the prospects for another city and regional championship team are very bright. Headed by Bob Lynd, city indoor champ, and Colby Ryan, who alternate at playing first position on the team, the team has already conquered Technical, Creston, Catholic, and Union, and bids fair to win all its other group matches. The squad is at present made up of the two Siegels (H. and S.), Bill Bloomer, Lawrence Verdier, Louis Schuhardt, Bill Shelby, Paul Fifield, Bruce Cleveland, Parker Terryberry and D. Mac Dowell. Bill Irwin is helping out with the squad and his aid is very valuable and much appreciated.

Indoor Baseball

ATHLETIC competition between the various high schools has been extended for the first time to Indoor Base Ball. All the city high schools, with the exception of South, but including Christian High, have entered teams and a very close race is being waged for possession of the Ralph G. Conger Cup. Central is at present tied for first place with wins over Technical, Creston, and Ottawa to its credit and losses to Union and Catholic on the debit side of the ledger. Two rounds will be played, the games coming on Monday and Friday. It is hoped that minor letters will be awarded to members of the team.

Central High Intramurals

THE year 1927-'28 bids fair to be the banner year for Intramurals. Never before has there been such interest, nor as high a grade of competition and last year's mark of 74 per cent student participation will be considerably bettered.

Swimming

 VERY Monday during the year the Juniors and Seniors have met at the "Y" for swimming. The girls were divided into three groups: seniors, intermediates, and advanced. At the beginning of the year the girls were tested on their swimming and diving ability and again at the close of the classes. Ninety per cent of the class had improved. Among the advanced group are Georgia Mead, Jean Helmer, Charlotte Simpson, Grace Pluene, and Hope Dunakin.

Hockey

 HE hockey season started with about 200 girls. A tournament was started with the teams captained by Charlotte Simpson and Georgia Mead ahead. Then came the rain, making a muddy field, impossible for practice. The girls went inside and played volley ball instead, with Helen Coffield's team coming out victorious.

Basketball

 ITH the beginning of basketball, nearly one hundred girls turned out. After a great deal of practice, there followed a series of games between the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades. The teams captained by Dorothy Bolt, Betty De Boer, and Violet Canburg, respectively, emerged victorious. The eleventh graders drew a "bye" and, as the twelfth grade took the laurels from the tenth in a close game, the juniors and seniors had to fight it out. At the end of the fourth quarter of this game the score stood 18 to 18, and, after a three minute overtime, the score still remained 18 to 18. The rules only allow one overtime so the victory was left to be determined on Inter-Class Night.

Inter-Class Night

S a closing event of the winter term came Inter-Class Night. There was a close race between the juniors and seniors in the first three events; then the sophies began creeping up, taking first place in the last event and tying with the juniors in the next to last. This put the seniors back while the juniors kept their lead and won the meet with a score of 1,075, the sophomores came in 2nd with 1,025 points, while the seniors made 950.

Athletic Awards

HERE are three athletic honors for the senior high girls to strive for. They are a numeral, a letter, and an all-city honor. A numeral requires 1,000 points, a letter 2,000, and an all-city honor 3,000. A girl must have a numeral before she can receive a letter and a letter before she is eligible for an all-city honor. Georgia Mead, Charlotte Simpson, and Grace Pleune are the three eligible for a letter, while Hope Dunakin is the only one working for an all-city honor.

BAGDAD SENTINEL EXTRY!

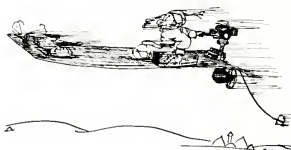

Oct. 19, 42 BC (AP)

Sinbad, who had long been given up for lost, arrived late last night at Damascus. Only meager news has been collected because the power tubes of station W H O A, Damascus, blew in a storm directly after his arrival there.

BAGDAD SENTINEL

Oct. 20, 42 BC (AP)

Sinbad burned a bearing out about two miles south of Damascus and made a forced landing at El-Kabir field, at 11:15. The traveler had come about 4,000 miles without stopping, 2,800 of this over open water, on the other side of which is a new continent with advanced civilization. We are giving extracts from his diary, as follows:

Sept. 2, 42.

Flew past last stretch of water today. Passed large city, partly on island, with many tall mosques.

Sept. 3, 42.

This old Elto is on its last legs. I had to land in a town not far from a large lake, Ghran Raphith or something like that. Landed on the lawn of the so-called school (?). I thought at first it was a garage. There were a lot of funny looking little runts running around cracking whips. Can't tell me that's a high school. One of the teachers, a fellow named Robbeh, is engaged to gym teacher here. He wants a diamond pretty badly.

Sept. 5, 42.

Been staying at the Pantling Hotel. Robbeh and I are going fifty-fifty on a new Johnson motor. We're leaving for the Valley of Diamonds in an hour. He must be desperately in love. Oh, well! I used to drop in to see Cleo pretty often myself.

Sept. 6, 42.

Flew to the Valley. Johnson runs great. 5 to 25 in $6\frac{3}{4}$ seconds. 72 m.p.h. in fourth gear. Robbeh got his diamond, and we got back in time to see the Fire Prince. Very nice, but I'll race Prigio any time with this new buggy of mine. I'm having a good time here, but I must get back to Bagdad. I sat in the 9th hour class in room 134. Three little shrimps pester the teacher endlessly. Too bad! Have a blind date for the Regent tonight.

Baltimore, Sept. 7, 42.

That date was better than Cleo. I'm on my way home. I suppose I'll have to speak before all the Literary Clubs when I get back.

Damascus, Oct. 19, 42.

Couldn't make Bagdad. Burned out a bearing on that darned oil I got at Baltimore. I just found out that I was elected Mayor of Bagdad. I want to go back to see Robbeh and Mrs. Robbeh and have another DATE with that girl.

reached for my pocket. We were packed so tight that I couldn't get my hand in, but by frantically pushing and shoving back and forth I squeezed it in and by repeating the action 4 or 5 times got it out again to find a button closely guarded in its palm. Finally I got a dime (I am not sure yet whether from my own pocket or from one of my fellow sufferer's) and, being carried forward to an open window, barked at a good-looking, red-faced, lazy-eyed fellow somebody called Chuck that I wanted a bag of peanuts. Ignoring me, he smilingly took a nickel from and placed a candy bar in the dainty hand of a girl somewhere behind me. (Editor's note. Careful investigation has proven that she was Connie Gillard.) He then gave me the peanuts, carefully breaking the bag on the edge of the counter. Trying to retreat, I found that the human wall behind me was impenetrable. I turned, and, shutting my eyes, shoved, squirmed, bit, pulled, scratched, climbed, and crept my way out. My bag of peanuts had mysteriously changed into a Clark bar, but eats is eats. Comparing my experience with those of other fellows, it was not exceptional. One fellow showed me a scar on his arm and by examining it closely, one could plainly see the head of an Indian and the date 1919 inside the circle. Another said that one time he had a different pair of shoes on when he came out of the crowd than what he wore in. He said they were half a size too large but he did not complain as the others were nearly worn out. After such experiences one can sympathize with a sardine, but, such is life.

ALADDIN AT CENTRAL

Among all the lads of the class of 1928 there was none who signed himself Aladdin, but that was because the true Aladdin didn't want to confess to such a queer name. He was a ne'er-do-well in the class, loving better to wander about the halls than to study in the session room. He was the despair of his family and teachers who would wail—"But what about your college recommendation?"

One day when he was poking around among the lost and found articles at Central, he came upon a dusty flashlight. He thought of his flivver and said—"Just the thing—the ads all say every car should have one," so off he went. Being a neat ne'er-do-well, he began to brush off the dust, when suddenly he was confronted by a sprite that said—"I'm a representative of Speed—what can I do for you?"

What makes a good school?

Is it Management? Is it Faculty? Is it Building?
Is it Equipment? Is it Experience?

It is all of these plus a definite educational ideal. And in all these qualities Davenport-McLachlan ranks very high. Our new building now being constructed at 215 Sheldon will put D. M. I. still further in the lead. You will find, that it does make a difference what school you attend. Davenport-McLachlan received more than a thousand calls a year for its graduates. Why not give yourself the advantage of a D. M. I. diploma? Summer school starts May 1. Send for a catalog.

Now this 1928 Aladdin, when he realized what power he possessed might have taken revenge on those teachers whose bad reports had caused him such trouble, but being a loyal Centralite, he said, "I'll see what I can do for this old dump."

To the Speed sprite he said, "First clean up this place—the soot around here is fierce." In a twinkling the windows and walls were shining with cleanliness, and the statues—well, you'd never have recognized Victory and Joan of Arc.

"Great," said Aladdin, "next, see if you can fix those squeaky seats in the auditorium." With a clatter of metal, off came the wood and on went plush. "Won't assemblies be comfy now? Well, let's see—that front stage curtain looks pretty rusty"—and as he spoke down it came and up went a beauty in its place.

"Hurray," shouted Aladdin, and jumped for joy, making a clatter with his heels, at which along came Miss Daniels who remarked—"You are much too noisy in the halls."

"Rubber heels for every one, Speed," quoth Aladdin, and you'd have been surprised when classes passed.

Now Aladdin often skipped gym, and this day he went out the North door, bound as usual for the store instead of Ralph Conger's domain. It had been raining, and he noticed many cars parked in the mud. So he said—"Speed-sprite, if it's in your line, a little concrete work here, please." The cars were mysteriously lifted, a fine parking platform unrolled under them like a rug, and then they were lowered.

"Guess after all, I'll go and see Ralph," thought Aladdin. So over he went. On the way he spied a vacant lot just over the fence. "What a swell tennis court could be made there! Maybe if I fix it up, I'll get my gym credit in spite of all my skips. Move the fence over, sprite, go to it." Nuff sed—it was done. Around in front of the gym there was some landscape gardening very much needed, so he rubbed some more dust off the trusty flashlight and gave the sprite another job.

From that day on he was Central's little handy man, and when Commencement came he was assured of a diploma and a seat on the front row (his name began with A, you see.) But whom to take to the Senior banquet? Out came the dusty flashlight, but alas it dropped and broke—No more Speed sprite—Aladdin squared his shoulders and said—"By my sheikish self I'll win the best girl in the class. Ho hum—who said Ne'er-do well?"

THE EQUITABLE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF IOWA

Here Is Something to Remember

THAT the percentage of actual to expected mortality of the Equitable Life of Iowa is one of the very lowest of any company, and this is reflected directly in high dividends to policyholders.

THAT in no year has the Equitable Life of Iowa failed to pay a dividend to its policyholders and during the last ten years the payments in dividends to policyholders have greatly exceeded the payments in death claims.

THAT the Equitable Life of Iowa operates under the Iowa Deposit Law which requires approved securities to be deposited with the state in amounts sufficient to cover the reserve on every policy.

THAT the Equitable Life of Iowa invests only in the safest securities—first mortgages, government and municipal bonds.

THAT more than one-third of all new insurance written by the Equitable Life of Iowa is being applied for by old policyholders—evidence of the satisfaction of policyholders in the service rendered by this great institution.
